London Leadership Academy

Power In My Stride

Last week at the Health and Care Woman Leaders Network (NHS Confed & NHS Employers), I was truly inspired by the speakers and guests in attendance and was reminded that 'I can't be what I can't see'. This left me walking home with power in my stride. I'm here to step into the ring of fire and flourish as a BAME leader for LLA.

As an experienced PA, I have often been my Directors' right arm, and have shaped my career vision, values, and objectives through these experiences. I am honoured to work for London Leadership Academy.

Who am I? An Empress in process with God holding my handbook. Much more than a mother to three adorable gems. A woman of strength where talent speaks louder than prejudice.

I have a keen interest in women's empowerment, inclusion, and Talent Management, and am so happy to be here to help change the culture in the NHS. Let's continue to inspire our audiences, promote shared learning and demonstrate the importance and values of leaders in the NHS.

With best wishes,
Marsha Teressa Mcketty
Personal Assistant

Research nursing offers a new direction for NHS nurses

Can you help the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) reach Nurses & Midwives who are nearing retirement, returning from a career break, or seeking a career change?

The NIHR want them to consider clinical research as a way to keep making a difference in nursing and midwifery. The campaign seeks to invite up to 50 professionals to shadow a research team in order to gain an insight into what it's like to work in research.

Leading for London

I was delighted to be with colleagues from the Police, Fire and Ambulance Services in October exploring how we could build on our links and collaborating on important work being done around leadership in public sector organisations.

I am excited to be part of a Community of Practice exploring sharing our coaching and mentoring resources as a great opportunity for our system.

If you're interested in (v) short notice availability on the Met's Leading for London simulations, get in touch.
